Returning from her 2017 EP Beloved, singer/songwriter, Katie Harder emerges from the joyful but challenging chaos of 2020 and life with four boys with a triumphant new single Sing it Out.

Harder describes writing the track,

"Sing it Out was written after some special time during a workshop with a group of Indigenous women in Central Australia last year. We talked about the amazing ability of singing to heal people, and the profound way that crosses cultures. With the world in such a crazy place it seemed like the perfect time to write a song that reminded us of that!

This beautiful track traverses delicate keys and gutsy rock tones, exploring soul searching ideas about what we might need to sing out from ourselves. Release is found in a fun and hopeful chorus that encourages the listener to find healing from whatever hardships they've faced in the year just passed by singing it out."

'Sing it Out' was recorded and mixed by award-winning producers Broadwing and Dave Crowe. Harder's latest offering shows an increasingly sophisticated sound and style as she collaborates with masters in their fields to bring new dimensions and a fresh sound to her heartfelt and honest music. This single was made possible with funding from a grant received from the Alice Springs Town Council.

The 'Sing it Out' single, plus Katie's brand new Video Clip, will be released on April 2nd through Sing Hum Records. Katie will be performing a celebratory release gig on the 10th April with her band 'The Artful Dodgers'. More information to follow.
